Explanation of the chapter:

‘My Brother my brother’ is the story written by Noor Burke, an English writer. The story is about the heroism and bravery of a jungle boy named Sher Singh who lived in jungle in India.

Sher Singh was the first son of Sher Singh Bahadur, a famous, courageous and brave hunter. He spent most of his time in the forest to hunt the animals. He had many children who passed away due to Cholera and Influenza. Only 2 of them had survived. The elder son was Sher Singh and younger son was Kunwar. One day the younger son of Sher Singh Bahadur fell ill. As Sher Singh was only 12 years old, he was so young to take his brother to the hospital which was 50 miles away from their home. Their mother had to look after the house and the cattle. Sher Singh decided to take his younger ailing brother to a hospital in Kala-Ghat, that was very far away. He carried his brother in a sling made by his mother.

His journey to town was a very difficult task. He had to go through the jungle and cross the river on his way, he faced no of hard ships courageously. With great difficulty, he crossed the river and reached the road that led to the hospital. After reaching Kala-Ghat, Sher Singh admitted his brother in the hospital. The doctor asked him if he had carried his brother alone from a far off place. The boy nodded his head. With the doctor's assurance of his younger brother's recovery, the story ends in a positive note.
